

Volunteering Opportunity

For early-career professionals (ECPs)

London Transport Museum needs you to share your experience with students aged 12-16, and inspire them to start thinking about their careers.

“Being interviewed made me aware of how I convey myself in front of an interview panel...such a valuable experience, not only for the young participants but for myself.”

Early-Career Professional: Eli Bligh-Briggs, Apprentice, London Transport Museum

ABOUT YOU

- Early in your career (under 25)
- Interested in making a difference in young people’s lives
- Keen to develop your own interview techniques and self-presentation
- Available for half a day (9.00 – 13.00)

WHAT YOU’LL BE DOING

- Training in interview techniques, self-presentation and working with young students
- Being interviewed by students aged 12-16, enabling them to find out about your career
- Receive in-person feedback to support your own CPD

Workshops take place at London Transport Museum, LTM Acton Depot or in a partner school, from September 2014

This initiative is part of the LTM Young People’s Skills Programme, which supports young people to cultivate key skills relevant to employers and develop a proactive attitude toward pathways into work
