

Powerful Partnerships: Self-reflection Activities

Three self-reflection activities underpinned by the Powerful Partnerships framework to assess your strategic partnership's strengths and weaknesses and map your journey to a powerful partnership.

Thinking about the 13 values for Powerful Partnerships on the right and what they mean for your strategic partnership, use the following three self-reflection activities to assess where you are now, explore your priorities and begin to create a timeline for your next steps.

Strengths and Weaknesses

Taking each of the 13 values for a Powerful Partnership, think about which ones your strategic partnership do well and which you may need to work on.

Understanding Powerful Partnerships

An activity to help you reflect on ease vs. priority – the vertical axis represents priority (from low to high) and the horizontal axis represents ease of implementation/amount of resource required. Map each of the 13 values for a Powerful Partnership onto the grid to identify quick wins – high priority and easy to implement – and longer term projects which require more resource or time.

Mapping Your Partnership

Keeping in mind the strengths and weakness, and priorities you have identified through the previous self-reflection activities, use this tool as the basis for a timeline to start thinking about when you can make things happen.

You might want to print and cut out the 13 values and move them through the 3 self-reflection activities or create your own.
