A visual guide to support pupils' understanding of going to see Frameless, an immersive art experience in Marble Arch, central London.

You can access additional resources on A New Direction's website.

FRAMELESS®

This visual guide could be particularly relevant to pupils who benefit from Social Stories. Teachers could read it with their classes before the trip and it could be shared as a handout for grownups to read at home too.

To find out more about Social Stories, please visit this website.

We're going to the art gallery!

I will travel to Frameless, an immersive art gallery.

I might be travelling by bus,

or by train,

or on foot.

My class will be going there too.

My teachers will going be there too.

The Location

This is the outside of Frameless.

This is the inside of the building.

This is one of the galleries I will visit.

The Art Experience

I will see an immersive art experience.

There are four art galleries to visit.

Here is more information about the experience:

Frameless is an award winning multi-sensory immersive art experience where visitors can experience iconic world-renowned masterpieces as they've never been seen before.

With four main galleries featuring 42 masterpieces from iconic artists such as Van Gogh, Monet, Hokusai, Kandinsky and many more, accompanied by a carefully curated soundtrack, the Frameless experience is sure to leave you spellbound from the moment you step inside.

To get to the galleries, I will go through a multi-coloured walkway.

I will go down an escalator which has mirrors and colour-changing lights.

The Galleries

The galleries will have sounds and music.

If it is too loud, I can cover my ears or use ear defenders.

My class will be there.

Other schools might be there too.

The Galleries

I can wear dark glasses if I need to.

I can walk around the galleries.

I can sit, stand or interact with the pictures on the floor.

Other people might also be walking around or sitting in the gallery.

The End of the Experience

When I have seen the galleries, I will get back to the main entrance by the lifts...

or by the stairs.

I will walk back to the main entrance.

I will say goodbye to the staff when I leave.

I will travel back to school with my teachers and class.
